EXAMPLES OF MEDIATION CASES OF HANDLED: 2000 – 2008

Ty has served as the mediator in over one hundred construction cases over the last eight years. Examples are as follows:

Mediation with seven parties (Owner, General Contractor, Design Engineer, Clerk of the Works On-Site Engineer, Materials Testing Subcontractor, Excavation Subcontractor and Specialty Liner Subcontractor), including design and construction of industrial facility. Owner claims exceeded $25,000,000. All disputes involving the Owner, General Contractor, Clerk of the Works On-Site Engineer, Excavation Subcontractor and Specialty Liner Subcontractor were resolved. A unique aspect of this mediation was that over ten insurance companies were involved, with coverage and excess coverage issues.

Mediation with nine parties (City, General Contractor, Design Engineer, Inspector, Fabrication Subcontractor and Coatings Supplier), including large city, general contractor, four subcontractors, architect, engineer, and product vendor, with respect to the design, construction and construction inspection of two large steel bridges. The parties resolved their respective monetary claims and thereafter, the matter proceeded to decision in the appellate court on legal issues only.

Two party mediation of $6,000,000 claim relating to design, construction and performance of water treatment facility. The two parties were the design engineer and the owner/municipality.

Four party mediation involving a public utility in the electrical general and transmission business, the design-build engineer/contractor and several subcontractors with respect to the design, construction, commissioning and performance of a chilled water plant.

Two party mediation of $13,000,000 claims relating to "differing site conditions" and related time based claims arising out of a subcontract, where prime contract was with federal government.

Mediation of disputes between national highway general contractor and its excavation subcontractor with respect to issues associated with the negotiation and execution of liquidation and common interest agreements. Following the successful mediation, the two parties jointly pursued the prosecution of a claim against a public entity.

Two party mediation of $750,000 claims relating to change orders, quantity-based, unit priced changes to horizontal construction project located in the northeastern United States. The dispute involved Type II differing site conditions claims and related time based claims arising out of a subcontract, where prime contract was with federal government agency.

Mediation in a mid-western state, involving claims among a general contractor, municipal owner and the owner's design professional arising out of a waterline installation project. This was a publicly bid project, which settled following a lengthy one day mediation conference and some follow-up negotiation of the settlement documentation.

Mediation of disputes between national highway general contractor and its excavation subcontractor with respect to issues associated with the negotiation and execution of liquidation and common interest agreements. Following the successful mediation, the two parties jointly pursued the prosecution of a claim against a public entity.

Mediation in a mid-western state, involving a claim by the owner directly against an electrical subcontractor and its bonding company, relating to extensive modifications to a meatpacking plant. This matter had two parts to the litigation, one of which was pending in federal court and the other in the state court. Claims involved the issues of the performance of the subcontractor, who left the job before its completion and the responsibility that it had, if any, directly to the owner for the costs of completion.

Mediation in a case involving the general contractor and electrical subcontractor on the construction of a water treatment plant in Colorado for the State of Colorado. This was a bid job and the key issue involved claims for extras and retainage from the subcontractor, and a counterclaim for defective and unacceptable work.

Mediation involving a water and sanitation district ("owner") and general contractor arising out of the construction of a sewage treatment plant. The general contractor asserted claims for its retainage and various change orders for which it had not been paid, as well as delay, acceleration and impact claims.

Mediation involving a dispute between the owner of a large residence and the general contractor that had constructed it. Issues involved claims for failure to pay and time based claims, and counterclaim of alleged construction defects.

Mediation in a northern Rocky Mountain state of a dispute among the school district, the architect and two of the architect's subconsultants. The dispute originated with a claim by the architect and its consultants for fees and expenses due to it for the design of two new schools and the remodeling of a third. The school district asserted claims against the architect and its subconsultants for various alleged design defects and deficiencies in the three facilities.

Four-party mediation dispute involving a school district owner, the general contractor, its mechanical subcontractor and electrical subcontractor. This dispute involved the issue of responsibility for change orders and extras on a public works job, based upon a guaranteed maximum price contract for the construction of two new high schools.

Four-party mediation involving a dispute between a homeowner, the general contractor, one of its subcontractors and one of its suppliers. This dispute commenced as a mechanic's lien foreclosure action and expanded to include cross claims among the homeowner, general contractor and one subcontractor over issues of defective and unacceptable workmanship and time and materials charge, plus fees allegedly owed to the general contractor by homeowner. The very highly charged emotions of the homeowners were significant elements of the mediation process.

Multi-party dispute involving a chiller plant for a large Midwestern Utility, with a dispute between the owner, design-builder and various subcontractors. This dispute involved the issue of responsibility for design and performance of the facility, where multiple prime contractors were engaged by the owner and issues of both ultimate costs and performance were in dispute. Parties achieved resolution of the dispute in the mediation process.

Multi-party dispute involving a western airport and a general contractor claiming delay, acceleration and related impact/loss of productivity claims. The project consisted of major additions and remodeling of an operating airport. Parties achieved resolution of the dispute in the mediation process.

REPRESENTATIVE ARBITRATION CASES: 2000 - 2008

HEAVY HIGHWAY & BRIDGE CASES:

Case 1

Served as Chair of three-arbitrator panel. Claim: $768,310.00. Two Parties: General contractor sued by assignee of subcontractor. Three weeks of hearings, resulted in a lengthy written opinion and award for the general contractor, plus attorneys' fees, costs and expenses.

Case 2

Served as single arbitrator. Claim $225,000 subcontractor, with $150,000 counterclaim by general contractor. Claimant was "dirt work"/excavation subcontractor in Nebraska against general contractor, which was principally a paving contractor. Two days of hearings resulted in written opinion and award to subcontractor.

Case 3

Chair of three-person panel involving protracted construction dispute among the general contractor, an assignee of one of its subcontractors who defaulted, and three other subcontractors who were brought into the dispute on a third-party basis by the general contractor on theories of indemnity and contribution. Three weeks of hearings, with award for general contractor, plus subsequent three days of hearings on attorneys' fees. Award was confirmed by the United States District Court for the District of Colorado and subsequently affirmed in an opinion of the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

HOTELS:

Claims included breach of contract, design professional liability, subcontractor design-build, construction defect and warranty claims.

120-Unit Condominium Project

Chair of three-arbitration panel between owner/developer and general contractor following completion of condominium project, where owner had failed to pay for contract balance, delay and impact claim. Award for general contractor for $945,000, following three weeks of hearings.

Single Family Residence

Single arbitrator on a $200,000 claim, between an owner who is an architect, and the general contractor who built his home. Four day arbitration hearing. Findings of fact and conclusions of law, issued with net award to owner/architect.

Forty Unit Condominium Project

Chair of three-person arbitration panel for construction dispute in which general contractor sued owner of a large condominium project for delay, acceleration and extras on a guaranteed maximum price contract.

Single Family Residence Remodel

Single arbitrator case, involving dispute between remodeling contractor and couple who owned home over cost of remodeling and performance of windows and doors. Award of $50,000 to homeowners, after three days of hearings.

ARBITRABILITY – INTERPRETATION OF ARBITRATION AGREEMENT:

Arbitrator in limited scope situation in which role was limited to decision on issue of the three parties' rights, if any, to consolidate two separate arbitration proceedings into one at the request of the general contractor. Matter was submitted on written argument by the parties without any hearing or appearance. Handled dispute between general contractor and owner over quality of work, claims for extras and contract balance involving a major remodel job on a single-family residence.

CONTRACT DISPUTES:

General Contractor, Subcontractor, Insurance and Bonding Company

Arbitration of contract dispute and claim for reimbursement by national general contractor against subcontractor and its insurance and bonding companies. 1 day evidentiary hearing and award.

Paving Contractor and Apartment Developer/Owner

Handled fast track case involving asphalt paving contractor's claim against large apartment complex management company. Matter was handled in a three-hour hearing that was held by conference call. No appearances were necessary by any of the parties.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS INDUSTRY/FIBER OPTIC CABLE CASES:

Case 1

Single arbitrator in a case between a major telephone company and a general contractor, claiming $2,400,000 in damages for additional work and out of scope work on the installation of a fiber optic telephone cable in northern Arizona. Award rendered for telephone company.

Case 2

Single arbitrator in dispute between telecommunications company, general contractor and its subcontractor over additional unit costs and charges on multi-state fiber optic cable installation in southwestern United States. Decision and award for general contractor and subcontractor for $1,400,000.

Case 3

Single arbitrator in dispute between design engineer and telecommunications company relating to cause of fire in Operations Center. Award for telecommunications company for $375,000.

OFFICE/COMMERCIAL BUILDING AND RESTAURANTS:

Restaurant Dispute

Chair, three-member arbitration panel, in dispute among general contractor, owner and five subcontractors, where subcontractors intervened in action between owner and general contractor on restaurant project. Award for general contractor and subcontractors, with set-offs for back charges and incomplete work. Finding of Fact and Conclusion of Law for mechanic's lien decree of foreclosure.

Commercial Office Building

Single arbitrator in a case between a steel fabricator and general contractor regarding steel detailing, erection and fabrication for commercial office building. Award for general contractor for $1,200,000, after ten days of arbitration hearings.

Private School Building

Single arbitrator in dispute between owner and general contractor over the construction of a private school building. Award for owner.

INDUSTRIAL FACILITIES:

Electrical Power Generating Station:

Member, three-person arbitration panel, for dispute between owner and general contractor arising out of the construction of a power generating stations for an electrical utility in the Midwestern United States. Claims of more than $2,000,000 were asserted, claiming breach of contract, delay, impact, acceleration and related loss of productivity claims. Matter settled shortly before hearings were to commence.

ILLUSTRATIVE MEDIATION/ARBITRATION CASES: 2000 - 2005

Condominium Project:

Court appointed, based upon the stipulation of the parties to serve as mediator/arbitrator with respect to seven-party condominium dispute. Multiple claims among the parties including alleged construction defects, design errors and breach of contract claims. Over eighteen months, all claims were negotiated to resolution without need for arbitration hearings.

ILLUSTRATIVE THREE-MEMBER ARBITRATION PANEL SERVICE

Mr. Holt served as Chair of Three Member Panel; $245,647.88 Award confirmed by United States District Court for the District of Colorado and affirmed by the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals. Case involved a claim for $364,678.40 by assignee holding security interest in landscaping subcontractor's property. Assignee brought claim against the general contractor on a public works project based upon delay and breach of contract claims. Three-member panel found in favor of the general contractor and awarded attorneys' fees, cost and expenses of arbitration. In confirming the award, the District Court found that the members of the Arbitration Panel "...carefully questioned each party as to their arguments about what the law required, and expressed a desire to make sure that they understood both the arguments of the parties and the law before they made their decision."

EXAMPLES OF CASES WHERE MR. HOLT SERVED AS LEAD COUNSEL IN LITIGATED OR ARBITRATED DISPUTES - REPRESENTATIVE CASES
